

Lending a helping hand to charity

As part of Willans commitment to the community we offer an hour of pro bono legal advice to charities with income or assets of less than £250,000.

These charities can meet us to discuss charity law or governance issues which may include:

- advice on issues relating to their constitutions
- setting up or dissolving charities
- merging with other charities
- trustee powers and responsibilities
- relationship with chief executive officer
- Charity law and regulatory issues involving the Charity Commission.

Margaret Austen is a specialist adviser with over 20 years' experience in charity law. As well as being a trustee and honorary solicitor to a number of charities in the county, she is recognised for giving advice that is commercially sound as well as purely legal.

A limited number of appointments are available every month. Please email or call and ask to speak to Anne Richards to enquire.

Please briefly outline the issue you would like to discuss in advance of the meeting. You may be asked to supply a copy of your constitution and any other relevant documents beforehand.
